CHANGSHA ON FIRE; TUFEI LOOT IT AS CITY FALLS

IS DISMISSED

HupehTuchunAppointed Inspector-General Of Two Hu Provinces

When Tuchun Chang Ching-yao of Hunan evacuated Changsha, the provincial capital, on Friday night, his office and the yamen of the Civil Governor were set on fire. Local bandits looted the shops after the military governor was a safe distance away from the city and ransacked all the wealthy houses.

Before he quit his post, Chang made a demand on the Changsha Chamber of Commerce for money. He wanted $1,000,000. The chamber called the merchants together and succeeded in raising $100,000 to satisfy the fleeing governor. Chang immediately remitted his money to Hankow and in the night boarded a Chinese gunboat and went to Yochow, ordering his aide, Li Kwei-yuen, to look after the welfare of the people. His troops began evacuation on the same night.

BANDITS BROKE IN

At noon on Saturday, the tufei broke into the city, and were followed by the Southern troops. Chang's routed troops fled in all directions and those arriving in Hankow and Kiukiang have been disarmed and sent to their respective homes by Generals Wang Tsang-yuan and Chen Kwan-yuen. Arms and munitions of the northern troops had been previously removed to Hankow by Chang.

The Peking Government refuses to issue any punitive Mandates against the Southern troops. The Joint Bureau of General Staff and the Ministry of War however has issued an order relieving Chang from office and holding him blamable for the loss of the Hunan capital. It has appointed General Wang, the Hupeh Tuchun Inspector-General of the two Hu Provinces and Wu Kwan-hsin, brother-in-law of Tuan Chi-jui, deputy Inspector-General. The orders are "Hold Yochow and recapture Changsha."

OTHER CITIES FALL

Besides Changsha, Southern forces have captured Liling, Chuchow and Lukow, thus acquiring over four-fifths of the territory of the province. The only Northern holdings are in Western Hunan, controlled by General Feng Yu-hsiang, the Christian Division Commander. Martial law has been declared both in Hupeh and Kiangsi.

A Japanese boat was fired on in the fight over Changsha, one passenger being killed and several others injured.

General Wu Pei-fu, the Chihli Division Commander whose withdrawal from Hunan shattered all hopes of Chang to hold the Tuchunship, openly rapped the Anfu Club in a speech he made at the Soochow Guild in Chengchow, Honan, on the day of his arrival last Thursday.

LOYAL TO OLD HSU

Support the President and wipe out the Anfuites are the two important points of his speech which was delivered when he was given an ovation by the merchants and students in Chengchow, his future headquarters. He enumerated the crimes of the Anfu Club in plundering the country and issued a call to all red blooded military men to join him in his combat against the contemptible politicians and militarists.

ANFUITES SEEKING RENEWAL OF WARFARE

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, June 13.—The members of the Anfu Club are reported to be taking advantage of the fall of Changsha to urge the issue of a mandate, declaring the resumption of hostilities with the South. The members of the Chihli party do not favor hostilities. These divided counsels render definite action very difficult but the Government will probably issue a mandate, appointing General Wang Chang-yuan Inspection Commissioner for Hupeh and Hunan.

When Changsha fell the Northern Commanders, Generals Feng-Yu-hsiang, Chang Tsung-chang and Fan Ko-chang, maintained neutrality. There was really little fighting in Hunan after General Chang Ching-yao fled.

According to Chinese sources General Lu Yung-ting has appointed General Ma Chi, Tuchun of

Let Both U.S. And China Join Alliance With Japan And Britain, Urged Dr. Wu

He Says Views Of Marquis Okuma On Question Are 'Very Sound'—From Standpoint Of The Nipponese; Offers Suggestion

"Marquis Okuma's views on the Anglo-Japanese Alliance are very sound—from the Japanese standpoint," declared Dr. Wu Ting-fang on Saturday, just before he sailed for Japan. "This alliance has proved very useful to Japan in the past and I cannot blame the Japanese leaders for desiring the renewal of it."

Dr. Wu had just returned from a short pleasure trip to Hangchow. He declared he was very fit physically but mentally was feeling rather jaded. "I had retired, as I thought, for good when the revolution of 1911 came along, and since that great event I have worked harder than ever I did in my earlier official days. And there is plenty of work ahead, so I must take a little rest whenever I can."

RAISES QUESTION

Dr. Wu is very much interested in the present discussion of the renewal of the alliance between Great Britain and Japan. It is of much less use to Britain now than before in his opinion. "But it is decidedly useful to Japan," he went on. "If they do renew the alliance, surely they will put in a clause stating that it is to lapse and become wholly void as soon as the League of Nations is established on a firm basis and as a functioning organisation. I do not see that they can do less.

"What is the alliance for, by the way, now that the possibilities of German and Russian aggression against China no longer exist? The chief object of the alliance, as stated on all occasions, and most recently by Mr. J. O. P. Bland, is to protect the independence and territorial integrity of China. If no nation is threatening China today why is the renewal of the alliance deemed necessary?

"I note that Marquis Okuma suggests that it would be a good plan for the United States to join the Alliance. Japan, I do not doubt would be very glad to have the United States in the combination. I remember making a speech in Washington more than 20 years ago when I was Minister to the United States. It was right after the United States had come into possession of the Philippines and I suggested that the American Government ought to extend the Monroe Doctrine to the Far East. My address was made at a banquet and everybody laughed heartily—but you see how things work around? Possessing the Philippines the United States has a very large and very valuable interest in this section of the world.

A QUADRUPLE ALLIANCE

"Having this large material interest in the Far East may appear to be a very good reason why the United States should join this alliance, which is for the peace of the Far East and for the maintenance of the status quo, so far as the territorial holdings of the various powers are concerned.

"And this being so, why should not China join the Alliance, too, and make it a quadruple alliance? China has more land, more people and more resources in the Far East than any of the other three, more than all three put together. Besides she is the party most interested, after all. Why therefore, should she not be asked to take a seat in this alliance as an active partner? If I can see no good reason why the two-party alliance should be renewed I can see many why this quadruple alliance should be formed. If the United States will go in, I think I can guarantee that China will, too."

Civic League Reorganises For Betterment Of People

Reorganisation of the Shanghai Civic League was accomplished yesterday afternoon, a new committee of 15 members was named and plans were set on foot for steps towards the betterment of conditions in the International Settlement.

That the members of the League are in earnest and inclined to independent action that will bring about the desired results was shown by an incident at the initial meeting of the reorganised league. The name of Mr. M. Benjamin, a member of the Municipal Council, was proposed for the committee. An objection was raised by Mr. W. H. Emberley on the ground that the candidate was not only a municipal official but also a landlord who had recently raised his rents, a subject which the League then had under discussion.

Mr. Cecil Holliday, in the chair, and other members of the League took issue with the objector and a spirited debate followed in which the matter was discussed in detail. A vote was overwhelmingly in favor of Mr. Benjamin's election to the committee.

On motion of Mr. Holliday, seconded by Mr. A. J. Hughes, the revised constitution was adopted.

On motion of Mr. Isaac Mason, seconded by Miss J. S. Ward, an amendment to the new constitution was adopted providing that five members, instead of six, constitute a quorum for the committee.

THOSE ON COMMITTEE

Mr. N. A. Viloudaki made the motion, seconded by Mr. H. Goldberg, that the following committee be named: Messrs. Cecil Holliday, F. Rawlinson, G. E. Pest, A. J. Hughes, S. Levinson, C. C. Nish, W. G. Hiltner, J. B. Powell, George A. Fitch, M. Benjamin, Isaac Mason, G. J. W. Morgan and Mesdames H. C. Mei and O. M. Green and Miss J. S. Ward.

Mr. Viloudaki called attention to the rent situation in Shanghai and recommended that this be one of the first subjects to be considered by the League. His remarks were received with enthusiasm and it is anticipated that his suggestions will be incorporated in the program of activities to be drawn up at once by the new committee.

NEW CONSTITUTION

Here is the new constitution:

1.—Name: The name of this organisation shall be the Shanghai Civic League.

2.—Membership: The membership shall consist of English-speaking persons of any nationality, resident in the International Settlement of Shanghai, or having business or other interests in the Settlement, though themselves residing outside, but in the vicinity.

3.—Enrolment: Persons wishing to join the League must be proposed and seconded by members and be approved of by the Committee.

4.—Objects: The objects of the League shall be:

(1) To promote interest in, and study and discussion of, municipal matters of importance to residents in Shanghai.

(2) To provide an avenue through which may be expressed the views and needs of those who by virtue of their interest in the affairs of the Settlement have a legitimate claim to their expression.

(3) To secure collective action, when such is felt to be desirable, in the interests of public welfare.

5.—Committee and Officers: A Committee shall be elected at each annual meeting of the League, of not less than 10 and not more than 15 members who shall elect from amongst themselves a Chairman, Vice-Chairman, Secretary and Treasurer. Vacancies

Frank Harris, age 19, seaman on the American gunboat Elcano, who fired a bullet through his brain on the vessel Sunday morning, is at the Shanghai General Hospital. Deceased Was On Point Of Returning Home When Slain

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Hankow, June 14.—The United States consulate-general here learns from an authentic source that General Chang Chin-yao attacked the Reformed Church of the United States mission at Yochow and the Rev. W. A. Reimert was killed.

Liling, on the Wuchang-Changsha railway was also attacked. The foreign employes escaped to Pingsiang.

GUNBOATS MOVE

The vernacular newspapers report that nine Chinese gunboats under Admiral Tao are preparing to leave Kiukiang up-river for the defense of Hunan and that two with the Admiral himself passed Hankow yesterday morning. General Wu Kwang-hsin is being sent to Hunan for the same purpose.

The Southerners took Changsha on May 11. General Li Kwei-yuen is at present in Hankow. The yamens of the military and civil Governors of Hunan were burnt on General Li's departure.

After serving faithfully for over 15 years with the Reformed Church of the United States Mission in Yochow, Hunan, the Rev. W. A. Reimert was just on the point of returning to the United States when he met his tragic death, according to friends here who know the deceased.

Mr. Reimert had just sent home his wife and six children and promised them he would follow immediately.

Millions Is Loss In Ireland, Claim

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 11.—It is officially stated that since January 1 last, the claims for compensation for malicious destruction of property in Ireland total £2,718,000.

London, June 10.—In view of the efforts of Sinn-Feiners to destroy coastguard stations, and remove lighthouse equipment, the Irish Lights Board has warned mariners of the possible absence of usual flights; but large forces of marines have already been landed at vital points.

London, June 9.—A military patrol encountered 100 armed Sinn Feiners yesterday at Caher, County Tipperary, and captured several of them with cycles, arms and ammunition. A huge crowd subsequently atacked the soldiers and rescued the prisoners.

London, June 9.—The railway company in Ireland whose employes objected to handling munitions is persisting in its refusal to reinstate the strikers unless they undertake to handle all traffic alike. The negotiations to end the strike have consequently broken down. The Irish Labor Party has now pledged itself to support the strikers and is issuing an appeal for funds.

Vanity which caused P. M. Kojemiakin, a Russian, to give a number of Harbin friends his photographs, led to his undoing and as a result he was arrested here yesterday by Detective H. J. Smith on a charge of having forged a check for Yen 70,000 on the American Foreign Bank at Harbin. He had Yen 5,000 in his possession when he was taken and, according to the police, made a confession but blamed bank employes, now under arrest at Harbin, for his downfall.

The man will be taken before the Russian consular court for a preliminary hearing today and will then be returned to Harbin for trial.

Fleeing from Harbin the fugitive went to Dalny and then came to Shanghai. In the meantime photographs of him had been sent here and Detective Smith was able to identify him by his likeness to one of the prints.

CARPENTERS AND MASONS STRIKE FOR BETTER PAY

General Walkout Takes Place When Protest Meeting Is Stopped

RICE IS CAUSE

High Cost Of Living Prompts Workmen To Quit Work

The strike of local carpenters and masons, which began Sunday following the suppression by the Nantao police of a meeting of protest, became general yesterday. It is estimated that at least 10,000 workmen are out of work in Shanghai and Pootung. The immediate cause was the rapid rise in the price of rice which remained firm at $12.20 per picul yesterday.

The artisans have been restless ever since rice hit the $10 mark. Other professionals have gone out and returned to work again. But the carpenters and masons have refrained from doing so in view of the approaching Dragon Boat Festival, when their employers, the contractors, will have a chance to collect from building owners.

POLICE BALK PARLEY

A parley was planned by the foremen of the different plants and was to have been held at the Temple of Lupang, Shanghai City, Sunday, but Nantao police heard of the proposed gathering and immediately sent constables to have it suppressed.

Infuriated by this action, the foremen ordered a strike which was well responded to on Sunday Yesterday, however, the strike became general in Pootung in the morning and by noon the Shanghai masons and carpenters also walked out.

Several cases of intimidation were reported. Picketing was begun at various workshops and workmen were warned to hand over their tools under threats of mob action. The few who had remained at work were forced to comply.

In the absence of a meeting place, the situation looked ugly for a time. Riots in the Settlement were feared. The Police in the International Settlement took every precautionary step and constables were ordered to disperse crowds in the streets.

TO MEET TODAY

Crowds were seen moving about on the outskirts of the Settlements. It is understood that temporary headquarters have been established in the French Concession and representatives of the employers and the strikers will parley today. The employers themselves are helpless, they say. As the settlement day is drawing near, they have to meet all kinds of liabilities and unless the workmen keep to their jobs, they will not be able to collect from owners.

The Shanghai Federated Street Unions yesterday addressed a letter to the Military and Civil Governer of Kiangsu, urging relief for the rice situation. It is pointed out that the supply now available in Shanghai is limited and the restlessness of the working class is due directly to the shortage of the cereal.

It is understood that the masters will meet representatives

MAN IS TAKEN OUT OF RIVER; BADLY WOUNDED

A man said to be Mr. S. Toyozumi, head of the Cotton Yarn Department of the Mitsui Bussan Kaisha, was rescued from the Whangpoo River last Thursday and is in a critical condition at a local hospital, according to reports received yesterday by the Municipal Police. The man had a severe gash in his throat and another in his left wrist when he was taken from the water. It has been impossible to determine the details of the affair as the injured man has been in such a condition as to preclude the possibility of his making a statement.

A Custom's launch picked up the unconscious man from the waters on the Pootung side off Black Point. The police are making careful inquiries.

It was stated by the agents yesterday that it will be some little time before the cargo can be dealt with as surveys and other formalities must be taken care of.

Memorials Planned For Victims Killed In Siberia Tragedy

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, June 14.—Political and social organisations in Japan are working to crystallise popular sentiment with regard to the Nikolaevsk affair. The Press which is publishing long accounts from special correspondents, describing details of the affair is more inclined to blame the Japanese Government for its failure to protect Japanese nationals than the Bolsheviks as it regards Russia as a nation temporarily insane.

Hundreds of thousands of pamphlets, describing the incident are being distributed in Tokio today.

Memorial services for the victims of the massacre are being planned and public meetings called. Mr. Hara and the Members of the Cabinet are expected to attend a memorial service on Saturday next.

Disclaims British Reverses In Persia

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 9.—In the House of Commons today Mr. Bonar Law discredited the Bolshevik wireless message, claiming a reverse to British forces in Persia. He said that he was confident that there was no foundation for the report, which was probably based on the fact that some time ago, in pursuance of the policy of limiting our committments as far as possible, we had moved the very small British garrison from Resht. Mr. Bonar Law said that in his opinion that was the sole foundation for the wireless message.

London, June 9.—A Moscow wireless message declares that a revolutionary Government has been formed at Resht in Persia and that the British have left Resht for Bagdad. The message alleges that part of the Indian troops at Resht have joined the revolutionaries.

ITALY RESCINDS BREAD DECREE

Socialist Claims Victory For His Party—Speech Is Cheered

(Reuter's Service)

Rome, June 9.—In the Chamber today Signor Nitti announced the rescission of the recent decree raising the price of bread. He added that the Cabinet had resigned in consequence of the parliamentary situation, seeing that every party in the House was opposed to the decree, which the Government had sanctioned with a view to preventing the loss of 8,000,000,000 lire a year through the bread subsidy.

Signor Orlando, President of the Chamber also resigned.

The sitting of the Chamber was short and very turbulent. Signor Nitti, who was interrupted every minute, intimated that Ministers would continue to conduct current business. A socialist speaker claimed that the rescission of the decree was a triumph for the official socialists. Recriminations ensued leading to a general uproar, in which deputies came to fisticuffs. The Chamber adjourned sine die.

Rome, June 10.—All the newspapers forecast that Signor Giolitti will succeed Signor Nitti as premier.

Paris, June 10.—The French newspapers are of opinion that owing to the Italian cabinet crisis, a further adjournment of the Spa conference is almost certain.

HARDING OF OHIO NAMED TO RUN FOR PRESIDENT

Senator Is Leader Of Republicans In Race Next November

ENDS DEADLOCK

Wood, Lowden And Johnson In Lead On First Ballots

NOT A PACIFIST

Winner Among First To Urge Preparedness For America

(Reuter's Service)

Chicago, June 12.—The Republican National Convention nominated Senator Warren Harding as candidate for the Presidency and Governor Coolidge for the Vice-Presidency.

The following message pertaining to the Republican National convention was received by Millard's Review at 5:45 a.m. Sunday morning, June 13. The message was transmitted by Associated Press wireless to the Daily Cable News, Manila, direct from Chicago and by cable from Manila to Shanghai:

Chicago, June 12.—The Republican National Convention began balloting on June 11 for candidates for the Presidential nomination. General Wood led in the first four ballots taken after which the convention adjourned to await report of the platform committee.

The fourth ballot gave Wood 314½; Lowden 289; Johnson 140½. The two delegates from the Philippine Islands voted for Wood.

There are 984 delegates at the convention and, to receive the nomination for Republican candidate for president of the United States, one candidate must receive a total of 493 votes.

THE COMPROMISE

An eleventh hour compromise at the Convention has apparently saved the Republican Party from a split over the League of Nations' plank and a general fight in the convention over the Republican platform.

A minority of the resolutions committee brought in a report which was finally howled down by the delegates. The minority report recommended that the Republican platform should contain the following statement regarding the foreign relations of the United States:

"The present Democratic Administration's foreign policy has humiliated America and has irritated other nations."

The "Irreconcilables" finally accepted a provision drafted by Elihu Root as a basis for compromise. The Root resolution upholds the position of the United States Senate, but does not declare against the ratification of the Peace Treaty and the League of Nations' convenant.

This report was adopted, after which the convention took a recess for one hour to await the report of the platform committee.

The convention voted to meet at noon on Saturday, June 12, and to sit continuously until a candidate has been nominated for the Presidency of the United States.

EVENTS OF CONVENTION AT CHICAGO ARE GIVEN

(Reuter's Service)

Chicago, June 9.—Senator Lodge has been elected permanent Chairman of the Republican Convention.

Senator Lodge's opening address was punctuated with applause especially his declaration that "President Wilson's dynasty must forever be driven from power." He said that President Wilson went to the Peace Conference himself because he could trust no one else. Senator Lodge's reference to President Wilson's Mexican policy likewise met with applause.

LABOR HAS DEMANDS

Chicago, June 9.—Mr. Gompers, President of the Federation of Labor, has submitted to the Program Committee of the Republican Convention a series of demands with reference to the high cost of living, profiteering and opposing

Harding Of Ohio Named To Run For President

The appearance of Mr. Gompers at the Convention is considered significant, because the American Federation of Labor is committed to full political activity under the slogan that no enemy labor shall be given public office, if Labor can prevent it.

DEBATE HEATED

Chicago, June 10.—The question of the League of Nations is leading to very heated debates in the sub-committee which is drafting the Republican platform, between the Mild reservation group, led by ex-Senator Crane, and the anti-League Group under Senator Borah. Senator Lodge is using his influence in an endeavor to effect a compromise, but the differences have culminated in a threat by the irreconciliables to leave the party unless it declares flatly against the League. Thus the League issue becoming the foremost question at the national convention, not excepting even the presidential nominations.

DRAFT PLATFORM

Chicago, June 10.—The question of the League of Nations led to very heated debates at the Republican Convention today. A sub-Committee is drafting a platform between the Mild Reservation Group, led by ex-Senator Crane and the Anti-League Group under Senator Borah. Senator Lodge is using his influence in an endeavor to compromise but differences culminated in a threat on the part of the "irreconciliables" to leave the party unless it declares flatly against the League. Thus the League issue is becoming the foremost question at the Convention, not even excepting the Presidential nominations.

ACCEPT ROOT'S FORMULA

Chicago, June 10.—The Republican Convention has accepted the League of Nations formula, drafted by Senator Root, as a basis for compromise in spite of the threats of the irreconciliables to leave the party unless the League is turned down. A subcommittee which is endeavoring to find a basis for a compromise with a view to the consolidation of the party, is making progress and a complete agreement is imminent.

Senator Root's compromise provides for a new agreement with other nations, including the provision of a tribunal for the settlement of international disputes. Senator Boran described it as establishing the three principles, for which the irreconciliables were contending, namely, the omission of a ratification pledge, commendation of the Senate's refusal to ratify the Treaty and also the principle that any League of Nations must accord with the ideals of George Washington. Senator Hiram Johnson declared that the first assault of internationalism and international bankers on the Republican party had been met and defeated.

The Sub-Committee of the Republican Convention, which is drafting the platform, has adopted a plank, reciting the Republican achievements in spite of the "Unconstitutional and dictatorial" acts of President Wilson. The Committee decided not to discuss prohibition in the platform.

FINAL BALLOTS

The result of the 5th ballot was:

Governor Lowden	303
General Leonard Wood	299
Senator Hiram Johnson	133
Senator Warren Harding	78

In the 6th ballot, General Leonard Wood and Governor Lowden tied with 311½ each. There were breaks in Senator Johnson's delegation from Michigan and Senator Harding's delegation from Ohio.

The seventh ballot showed little change.

In the eighth ballot Governor Lowden obtained 307 votes, General Leonard Wood 299, Senator Harding 133 and Senator Johnson 87.

After the eighth ballot the Convention went into recess until 4 p.m.

Senator Harding is reported to be the leaders' choice and "deadlock breaker."

United States Senator Warren G. Harding has been likened to the late President McKinley and in the words of "a prominent Ohio Republican," quoted by the Literary Digest in a recent review, he is "of the McKinley type—safe, sound, courageous and always ready to listen to counsel." It is pointed out that in the pictures of both these noted sons of Ohio is a hint of sternness, and further, that Mr. Harding has no more of the dictator, the autocrat, in his character than had McKinley.

Speaking of Senator Harding's candidacy one newspaper further says that he would come to the presidency as McKinley did, after having served in the legislative branch of the government; and under a man so trained "dictation to the legislative branch of the Government by the Executive will be a thing of the past."

BORN ON FARM

Senator Harding comes of old Colonial stock, it is explained in a circular lately issued by Mr. Robert B. Armstrong, the Senator's publicity director. He was born on his grandfather's farm near the village of Blooming Grove, Ohio, on November 2, 1865 and was eldest of eight children. His father, George T. Harding, was the village doctor.

The circular sets forth that the Hardings came originally from Scotland, settling first in Connecticut and later in Pennsylvania before moving westward to Ohio. The Senator's boyhood and youth were spent on the Ohio farm where he learned to fell trees, split rails, plant and hoe and do all the things incident to farm life.

BECOMES AN EDITOR

Senator Harding's talent for journalism was first displayed while he was working his way through Ohio Central College of Iberia when he became editor of the college paper. He worked at odd times in the village printing office and it is said that he seemed to have a passion for everything that pertained to newspaper work.

When his father removed to Marion county seat of an adjoining county, after he had left college the opportunity to become owner of a newspaper presented itself to him. The Star was a diminutive struggling publication and young Harding was able to take it over, merely by assuming its indebtedness. Into this enterprise he threw all of his energies and in the years that the town of Marion grew from a population of 4,000 into a city of 30,000 the Star prospered and its owner became identified with many of the commercial enterprises that brought riches to the region.

Mr. Harding twice represented the Thirteenth Senatorial District of Ohio in the state legislature, served one term as lieutenant-governor, and he is now nearing the close of his first term as United States Senator.

NOT A PACIFIST

Senator Harding was among the earliest to advocate preparedness for war and he sponsored the bill for military expansion that had the endorsement of Colonel Roosevelt.

The wide range of Senator Harding's interests is partly revealed by the mere statement of the Senate committees on which he serves. He is chairman of the Philippines committee, and is a member of the Foreign Relations, Pacific Islands and Porto Rico, Weights and Measures, Territories, Public Health and National Quarantine, and Treasury Expenditures committees.

He and Senator Underwood, the latter being the Democratic leader in the Senate, represent the Senate on the Joint Committee for the celebration of the 300th anniversary of the landing of the Pilgrims.

EXPLAINS SECRETED GUNS

Chief Of German Staff Says They Were Intended For Koenigsberg

Berlin, April 28.—In an article commenting on the discovery by the Entente Control Commission of 286 guns at Stettin, the Independent Socialist organ Die Freiheit says the incident was discussed at a Cabinet meeting at which General von Seeckt, the Chief of Staff, declared that the secret movement of guns, which were intended for Koenigsberg, was undertaken with the full knowledge and approval of the Ministary of Defense.

"This statement," says the newspaper, "is very astonishing. Under the Treaty of Versailles Germany was allowed only 186 guns, and incidents such as this are bound to inspire the Entente with the deepest disgust."

Famous Australian Makes Big Speech On Antipodes In Zealand

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 9.—The Wellington correspondent of the Times states that General Sir W. R. Birdwood, in the course of a speech there yesterday, said that, as a result of Gallipoli, New Zealand and Australia stood shoulder to shoulder for the first time, as they must in the future in order to look with confidence to the security of the Pacific outposts. He advised New Zealand not to lose the opportunity, presented by the possession of numbers of trained men, to establish an efficient defense force. "New Zealand, Australia and India," Sir William continued, "should keep close touch so as to be able to help one another in case of need.

Reliance on the British Navy is good but the Navy might be needed in two places.

Carpenters and Masons Strike For Better Pay

of the strikers tomorrow at 2 o'clock at the Yi Ping Shang Hotel and offer them a six cents increase per day. So far there is no uniformity in the demand for increase. Some want 60 percent, while others want 80 percent. Their wages is 36 cents per day.

INTIMIDATION CHARGES

In one case before Mr. Grant Jones, British assessor, and Magistrate Kwan, Det.-Sergt. Kilkenny charged a mason and a carpenter with attempting to intimidate several carpenters who were at work on a new building at the corner of Shantung and Foochow Roads on Saturday.

The officer informed the Court that in consequence of the strike, he posted detectives at several places in the Central District where new houses were under construction. On Saturday evening, a detective saw seven men, the two defendants included, enter the place at the corner of Foochow and Shantung Roads and begin to call upon the men to stop work. After a while the workmen left the place. The detective placed the defendants under arrest.

The assessor: There is no evidence of intimidation. If you had charged them with inciting to strike, you could have secured a conviction.

Det.-Sergt. Kilkenny asked if he could amend the charge.

The assessor: I do not think it is necessary, as this will be a lesson to them.

The case was dismissed.

ANOTHER CASE

In another case which came before Mr. A. Blackburn, British assessor, and Magistrate Li, two carpenters were charged with inciting to strike.

Mr. R. A. Parker, giving evidence, said he was having some Chinese houses in Fokien Road repaired when the two men came and began inciting the workmen to stop or they would make trouble for them. His workmen left off work. He gave the two defendants into the custody of the police.

The two carpenters received one week's imprisonment each.

Japs Dislike Buffer State, Want To Conquer Siberia, Is Expert's Opinion

Writer Asserts True Russians Will Consider Mock Creation Under Jap-Semenoff Infuence As Provocation

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, June 12.—The following is the sixth and concluding report which Reuter's Agency has received from the Manchurian-Siberian zone. It is dated Chita, May 28, and completes the picture of the Eastern sectors of the proposed Buffer State, showing clearly the nature of the "wall" against which the Verkhne-Udinsk Government has protested:

"Chita, the capital of Transbaikalia, is a straggling country town built on the bank of the river Chita, a tributary of the Indoga, into which it flows quite near to the town. The seat of what is termed the Central Government by Semenoff partisans is at the present moment so overflowing with White Officers that it is impossible to get any hotel accommodation whatsoever. Most of the principal hotels have been requisitioned by the Japanese and Russian military authorities, but even these are insufficient for the military demands, so that officers as well as soldiers have been billeted in practically every private house in which room can be found.

The distance from Manchuli station to Chita is 446 versts, Oloviannaya being situated midway between the two towns.

The distance from Karimskaya, the junction station of the Transbaikal and Amur Railway systems, is 110 versts and the journey is accomplished in four hours by the mail train.

Leaving Karimskaya at 7 a.m., we arrived at Chita at 11 o'clock; the amount of military passed on the way was by no means large for the Reds in this sector are giving no trouble.

CHITA IS CROWDED

Most of my time was spent on the day of my arrival at Chita in looking for sleeping accommodation, I eventually found it at the quarters of a railway employe. Everywhere in the streets one meets Russian officers, and for the greater part Colonels. These latter are mostly quite young men, who in any other country would hold no higher rank than Lieutenants or captains. Promotion in the Semenoff Army is very rapid, and the giving-out of medals and orders is done on a most lavish scale.

Japanese military officers keep very much in the back-ground and though there are many here on the different staffs, they are not to be seen on the streets. The Japanese flag is flying over many buildings, and many of the most recently built and more palatial edifices have been either placed at Japanese disposal or been requisitioned by the Japanese military.

Japanese sentries stand on guard outside all these buildings. As in the case elsewhere, the Japanese guard very secretly all their movements and even refrain from giving any information to the Russian military authorities.

SUZUKI IN COMMAND

General Suzuki, Commander of the 5th Japanese Division is in supreme command of all Japanese troops, operating in Transbaikalia; he has headquarters in Chita itself from which point, he directs all military operations. The 5th Division consists of anything between 12,000, to 20,000 the majority of whom are to the west of Chita on what may be termed the actual Soviet front.

It is difficult to estimate the number of Japanese between the Manchurian frontier and Karimskaya or what may be termed the eastern partisan front, where many new Japanese troops have been brought during April and the first part of May. There are parts of two other Divisions which may number anything between 12,000 and 20,000 men.

The whole Japanese force under General Suzuki's command is not less than 30,000, including special units such as railway and engineer corps, armored train crews, etc.

The total number of Russian troops, of whom Semenoff is the Commander-in-Chief but who are actually under the command of General Lechvitsky, is estimated at about 30,000 in all; this amount does not include the large number of officers attached to different staffs or detached for special duty or without allotted posts. These cannot number less than 3,000.

HOSPITALS ARE FILLED

There are several large hospitals in Chita which have been filled to overflowing with sick and wounded belonging to the Kappel army, who are now gradually being evacuated. There are today said to be less than 2,000 men in them. Though to all intents and purposes Semenoff is in supreme power and his Government issues all kinds of decrees and proclamations to the Russian people in Transbaikalia, actually Semenoff has to submit himself to the orders of General Suzuki in all matters, and it is an open secret that the real power is held by the Japanese.

Since the declaration of General Oi and the changed attitude of the Japanese towards the Russians in the Primorsk and Ussuri Districts, it is a noticeable fact among the Russian residents of Chita, that the Japanese are giving Semenoff less rope than hitherto.

Since May 10 there has been absolutely no activity along the Western Soviet front, neither on the part of the Reds nor the Whites nor the Japanese. The vanguard of the latter is at the station of Mcgson, 110 versts west of Chita; here the Japanese have their armored trains and also occupy strategical points off the railway line. They are supported by some White troops but the latter can do nothing without first getting the consent of the Japanese command.

PROTECTING RAILWAY

It is an absolute fact that the Japanese here are merely protecting the railway line, and in no way carrying out any offensive; this policy has been adhered to for some time past.

The only time the Japanese engage the Reds is when the latter attack.

There seems no doubt the Reds have likewise received instructions from the Soviet authorities at Irkutsk not to make an offensive further eastwards, hoping that negotiations will be opened in the near future with the Japanese regarding the making of a buffer State.

East of Chita, in the Nerchinsk-Stretinsk sector, from Karimskaya along the Amur Railway, and along the Karimskaya Manchuli section of the Transbaikal Railway, the Japanese officially make the statement that here also they are not undertaking any offensive but merely protecting the railway line.

This, however, is not true for, though they may not be actually taking the initiative, they are actively supporting the Semenoff troops in all military operations in the offensive that the latter are making against different units of Red partisan troops.

FIGHTING CONTINUOUS

Fighting on a small scale is going or all the time at different points in the eastern portion of Transbaikalia and in the extreme west of the Amur province. The operations are quite distinct from the operations of defense that it is necessary to undertake when the Reds threatens the railway line.

In the above-named sectors there are several strong bands of well-armed Partisan troops, who are each acting separately and who are giving quite a lot of trouble to the White. These bands have of late rather increased than decreased on account of the conduct of Semenoff troops who raid villages, requisition everything they can find in them, and generally behave in a most barbarous manner to the peasants. The latter, who very much resent this treatment, for self-defense organise their own bands and try in their turn to annihilate the White marauders.

Then there are other Red bands, who are led by former criminals and adventurers, who find it a more profitable occupation to become bandits and who, though termed Reds, would continue to fight even if Transbaikalia fell under Soviet Rule; for they are against any law and order being established. Thus it will be seen that guerilla warfare in these districts is likely to be carried on for some time even after a stable government is established.

JAPANESE PREPARING

There is every indication that, though, of course, the Japanese military command must carry out instructions, received from higher quarters, the Japanese military in Transbaikalia have made every preparation to take up active operations against the Bolsheviks in Transbaikalia and are only being held back by the recent instructions they have received.

The Japanese military want to continue a war of conquest and not to see the creation of a buffer State, which will put an end to warlike operations along the real front. The real reason why General Voitchekovsky, Kappel's successor, left Transbaikalia is because the Japanese command here was against his action of attempting to enter into an agreement with the Zamstvos of Transbaikalia and Primorsk. The troops under his command, who now form the greater part of Semenoff's present force, are war veterans and thoroughly reliable soldiers.

Voitchekovsky's resignation took place before the Buffer State project had come into prominence; and his successor General Lechvitsky had been known to the Japanese military authorities through his recent sojourn in Japan, and no doubt the Japanese consider him a man, who will give support to them at any time that it is required.

BOLSHEVISTS IN MINORITY

The Majority of the population of Transbaikalia are not Bolsheviks, according to persons whose words may be relied upon. When Bolshevism started in Russia there was not more than one percent of the Transbaikal inhabitants in sympathy with Bolshevism. The reason is perfectly clear. The majority of the population is rural and most of the peasants are well-to-do, having plenty of land at their disposal. There are but few factories, or works; hence the proportion of workmen in the province is but small.

Semenoff's troops are largely responsible for the spread of Bolshevism; they having conducted themselves as freebooters, ignoring any law or order and wantonly carrying on raids in the country, robbing and ravaging peaceful persons, requisitioning all they could lay their hands on and forging all, who could do so, to pay contributions in towns and villages, besides committing all kinds of outrages that are against all laws of humanity. Hence many have raised their arms against them and thrown in their lot with the Reds. Given a proper government of honest men, the Transbaikalia would welcome it with open arms; for one and all are tired of civil warfare and strife.

The present Semenoff rule is hateful to them because they have been made to suffer for no real reason. Only because of this many are now prepared to accept Soviet rule in preference to the present government, though they fully realise that it will go hard with them if it comes about.

The idea of a Buffer State appeals to all, whether they belong to one political party or another, and undoubtedly it can become a success, if administered by patriotic men, who have the welfare of their country and their countrymen at heart. But, if the attempt is made to erect a mock state under Japanese-Semenoff influence with Chita as capital, it will be looked upon by all true Russians, in the circumstances I have described, as another provocation.

Street Union Raps Mr. Wen Tsung-yao

Mr. Wen Tsung-yao, honorary director of the Shanghai Federated Street Unions, has been dismissed by a resolution passed at a meeting of the executive council of the Union on Sunday. In a lengthy manifesto suggesting Mr. Wen's removal, the Haining Road representative sarcastically referred to him as the Administrative director of the South and the Deputy Commercial Commissioner of the North and said that "he should not be humbled with a post in a democratic institution."

GERMANS THROUGH

London, June 10.—According to the Daily Mail, Mr. Charles McCurdy, the Food Controller, refused a supply of corn to the German mission, headed by Herr Merz which has visited London to request the government to provide Germany with an immediate supply of food, but offered to send Germany bacon and mutton on certain terms.

London, June 9.—The Times learns that the German mission headed by Herr Merz, the Food Controller, has concluded its visit to London. It has requested the Government for an immediate supply of sufficient food to maintain the present food rations in Germany without adding to Germany's debt. The Mission also asked that Germany should be allowed to retain some shipping as she had to pay higher freight rates than other nations.

Paris, June 9.—The German Government on June 4, addressed a fresh note to the Allies, declaring that it was impossible to reduce the army effectives to the 100,000 provided for by the Treaty and demanding that a Reichswehr, totalling 200,000 men, should be maintained permanently.

The Allied Military Council has now replied that it is not prepared to depart from the Allied attitude at San Remo, the purpose of which was to press Germany to fulfil her engagements.

PROSPECTS POOR

Berlin, June 10.—Dr. Mueller the late chancellor, has not yet been requested to form a new government. The newspapers express the view that Dr. Muller's prospects of forming a cabinet on a firm basis are poor.

The latest idea is to create a coalition government, comprising representatives of the trade unions and of industry and agriculture, with Party politicians acting in a supervisory capacity.

The situation has been discussed at various party meetings but it is not likely that a decision will be reached until next week.

SPEAKERS PLEAD FOR PARLIAMENT IN PEACE PARLEY

While approving the early resumption of peace negotiations as set forth in the manifesto recently issued by the four leading Constitutionalists in Shanghai, the speakers of the old Parliament yesterday urged that Parliament be given full liberty to function as the legislative body of the Republic upon the conclusion of peace.

In a declaration which they issued, Mr. Lin Shen and Dr. C. T. Wang, Speaker and Vice-Speaker of the Senate, and Messrs. Wu Ching-lien and Chu Fu-cheng, Speaker and Vice-Speaker of the House, stated that the kind of peace which they were striving for should be permanent and that in negotiating for peace, the will of the people should be respected.

The declaration also stated that in accordance with the decision of the old Parliament, it will be removed to Yunnan where the seat of the Constitutionalists' Government will be located.

TAME TIGERS SLAUGHTERED

Smythe Is Led To Altar For Sacrifice When Blue Sox Start

In a rather listless game punctuated by heavy hitting on the part of the Blue Sox, "Doc" Clapp's hopefuls were outclassed by a one-sided score 13 to 4.

A good natured young gentleman by the name of Smythe, consented to be the lamb of sacrifice or in other words, pitch for the very tame tigers who made up the Red Hose hitless wonders. At the end of the third inning, Mr. Smythe decided it was too warm to work at the sacrificing game any longer so he retired in favor of a wild-eyed bird who had the Blue Hose speed marvels fanning the air for a few innings. Unfortunately Merrill's supply of saliva ran out and that put him at the mercy of the heavy artillery on the opposing side. A light curtain fire netted four more runs and this appeared to satisfy General Downs, who ordered "cease firing."

"Cook" Holman, desiring the assistance of the Hospital Corps, decided to call it a day's work. Without a catcher the Red Sox were forced to admit that they had enough and the game ended.

While the contest was not all that it might have been, the exhibition would have been improved a lot if a few more of the fellows who can play ball were on the field instead of sitting in the stands watching the game. The team deserves great credit for the efforts that have been put forward to keep the game alive. It is a peculiar situation. The players are suffering because they happen to be too good for the teams they have been up against.

If all the men who play ball were to turn out, some really hot games would result in the Red and Blue Sox series. It is up to all who can play to turn out in order that the game be kept alive. The Regulars play the International team next Sunday afternoon at 3:30 p.m. While the strength of the new team is not known, it is expected that a game worth looking at will be dished up.

SHORT AND SOUR

BY 'BUGS' BAER

About one more straw vote will bust the camel's suspenders.

* * *

There are 674 candidates for the high and dizzy office of President. Also Mr. Bryan. Bill is a chain smoker. He lights one nomination off the end of another. Bill is after another defeat for his trophy room. He only requires six more to have a complete set. His only mistake was in making the U. S. dryer than the end of a pin and expecting guys to vote for him while they're sober.

* * *

General Wood is stepping into a lot of rough stuff from the other candidates, who accuse him of raising the price of a vote. He was flattened in the Michigan hay balloting, and at last reports had bought a whisk broom of his own and was holding a straw vote in the Laughing Room.

* * *

The words and music of the Constitution harmonise in the beautiful melody that every American boy has a chance to be President. The words are still the same, but the music has changed plenty. They don't count the boy vote.

* * *

The wise cracking politicians voted the works dry and then gave the girls a vote after there was nothing left to vote about. There is no frail candidate for Washington this year, but the flappers are sure to control the White House, as every gent candidate is married. Most of the shriller sex are sure to twirl in the ballots for Hoover, who fattened Europe up for the next war. At present Herbert is neither a Democrat nor a Republican, and has a chance for victory, provided he can convince the Repubs that he ain't a Repub and the Dems that he ain't a Dem.

* * *

Woody's success depends on his ability to change the Fourteen Points into a hatrack or something useful. Labor has not forgiven Woodrow for turning their railroad strikes back to the private owners. They're very particular who they are not working for. Capital is sore on Wilson because he made 'em take the Erie railroad back. A man shouldn't try to carry hot water bags on both shoulders and expect people to believe there ain't nothing the matter with him.

* * *

Governor Edwards, Hiram Johnson and others are all prominent candidates. Every candidate is prominent until they start counting the votes. Edwards bases his platform on the 2.75 plank. This gives his opponent 97.25, which is an awful handicap to cut down with a dull knife. Still, there ain't a guy living who could grab the landlord vote without getting the tenants sore at him. The best way to please everybody is to announce that you are not a candidate.

Sugar Rations Again In Force

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, June 10.—From June 21 hotels and restaurants throughout the country will be rationed for sugar as in war-time.

Montreal, June 9.—Denunciation of Bolshevism, profiteering, the action of the United States Government in invoking the Food Control Law against the recent miners' strike and the failure of Congress to control the cost of living are the outstanding features of the Executive Council's report, presented to the American Federation of Labor Convention here today.

The cost of living is largely attributed to big profiteers.

The report congratulates Canada for defeating the so-called One-Big-Union idea. Her stand is characterised as a magnificent triumph for trade unionism. The report favors co-operative means with a view to curbing profiteering and urges that co-operative concerns shall be given legal protection against discrimination by manufacturers and wholesalers. The report adds that the cost of living must go no higher and that wages must be advanced in every case to the point at which the American standard of living is secure.

Suggests Changes In Defense Plans

Replying to Major-General Sir John Seely in the House of Commons today, the Prime Minister stated that the Committee of Imperial Defense was constituted so as to enable it to deal with the co-ordination of the sea, land and air defenses of the Empire by experts from the three services, who would attend meetings of the Committee as required. Mr. Lloyd George added that he hoped that meetings would be held shortly.

BUG MEN HOLD FINAL SESSIONS

Entomologists, In Conference, Vote For Big Budget To Fight Insect Pests

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 11.—The Imperial Entomological Conference held its final meeting today, Viscount Harcourt presiding.

Resolutions were passed recommending: (1) that a similar conference should be held in London every five years; (2) that an Imperial Bureau of Entomology should be established on a permanent basis and (3) that the contributory Governments should guarantee contributions, the total income to be provided being £13,000.

This evening the Government gave a dinner to members of the Conference.

Viscount Milner, Secretary of State for the Colonies, in the course of a speech, dwelt on the enormous progress of science in the Colonies. The tropical and subtropical possessions of the Empire, he declared, had an enormous future before them, and no factors were more important than health and accessibility. Lord Milner referred to the splendid work done by the Conference, which, he hoped, would meet in future at regular intervals.

Sir Thomas Watt, Minister of the Interior, Union of South Africa, said that the campaign against locusts in the Transvaal had had a great effect in dealing with plague.

CHANGSHA ON FIRE; TUFEI LOOT IT AS CITY FALLS

MANDATE ISSUED BY PRESIDENT

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, June 14.—A Presidential mandate issued yesterday evening, recounts the various stages of the Southern advance in Fukien, culminating in the fall of Changsha. The mandate continues:

"General Chang Ching-yao says that the Southern troops took advantage of the relief of the Chiali troops from garrison duty. It should be remembered that, since the armistice and the peace proposal of 1918, the line of defense in Hunan was clearly defined.

"The present action of General Tan Yen-kai and his followers, in renewing hostilities, constitutes a breach of the armistice. Being charged with the duty of guarding Hunan, General Chang Ching-yao should have strengthened the lines of defense, instead of which he retreated from place to place, leaving the line unguarded and finally retired from the capital without the permission of the Government. In consideration of such careless actions General Chang Ching-yao deserves punishment and is hereby deprived of the official titles of Tuchun and Acting Civil Governor, but is allowed temporarily to remain at his posts and to direct all Government troops in Hunan in order to recover lost ground.

"If he fails again to exert himself or causes fresh trouble, General Chang Ching-yao should remember that his serious delinquencies will no longer be tolerated by the Government."

TARIFF REFORM

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 10.—A Conference of the National Unionist Association at Birmingham today passed a resolution, supporting the whole policy of Tariff Reform and asking the leaders to prepare a tariff. An amendment to omit the latter part of the resolution on the ground of its impracticability at present was rejected.

English Trade Grows Rapidly

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 10.—Sir Robert Horne, President of the Board of Trade, writing in the Manchester Guardian says, "Our foreign trade has advanced by leaps and bounds, increasing the country's solvency. The most successful traders in the future will be those who are most resourceful in meeting the needs of the world's markets.

"The most astonishing example of the advance of trade is the manner in which Lancashire and Yorkshire manufacturers are taking advantage of American markets. Compared with the corresponding period of 1919, they exported 66 percent more cotton yarn, three times the amount of cotton piecegoods and from three to five times the amount of woollen cloth."

Labor Leader Makes Report Which Gives Startling View Of Russia

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 10.—Mr. Ben Turner, member of the labor delegation which has just returned from Russia, stated, in the course of an interview, that the Bolsheviks admitted that there had been a Red Terror and that 8,500 persons had been executed. The terror has ceased, but capital punishment had been restored in order to suppress espionage.

Russia, Mr. Turner said, was greatly lacking in food, clothing, raw materials and transport. Fifty percent of the inhabitants of Moscow and Petrograd were hungry.

A fierce fight was proceeding against disease. A million cases of typhus had been recorded and scores of thousands of cases of London, June 9.—The Daily Express learns that the preliminary difficulties in the way of the immediate resumption of trade with Russia are now removed as the Soviet Government has sent a wireless message to M. Krassin, promising the release of British prisoners and furnishing guarantees for the cessation of propaganda in the Near East.

London, June 9.—A telegram from Rome states that the Bolsheviks have captured a number of Italian sailors, beonging to the cruiser Etna stationed at Batum.

BRITAIN PREPARES BIG COAL QUIZZ

Scottish Owners Protest Short Week—India Asks Inquiry

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 10.—In consequence of the Government's decisions, announced on May 8 and 10, with regard to coal production, a conference of the Miners' Federation today decided to examine data, relating to the finances of the industry, with a view to formulating a demand for an increase of wages.

The Miners' Congress also demanded the withdrawal of troops from Ireland, urging the calling of a special Trades Union Congress for the purpose of determining the attitude of organised labor towards the handling and production of war materials in Ireland and Poland.

PROTEST PROPOSALS

London, June 9.—Scottish coal-owners at a meeting today passed a resolution, strongly protesting against the miners' proposals for a five-day week. They point out that this would mean a loss of 1,500,000 tons of coal annually.

URGES CONTROLLERS

Simla, June 10.—The committee appointed to inquire into coal questions in India advocates the appointment of a controlling authority to prevent wastage of coal, which at present can be wasted by coal-owners without restriction. Nationalisation of mines is considered beyond practical politics.

The report opposes statutory interference with regard to working hours and the introduction of shifts as likely to unsettle labor and cause discontent.

ALBANIANS WIN OVER ITALIANS

Villages Formerly Held By Southern Troops Occupied By Enemy

(Reuter's Service)

Rome, June 9.—The newspapers report that Albanian insurgents have occupied the villages of Bestrova and Selitza and that the Italian garrisons have withdrawn to Valona. The destroyer, Valona, is covering the retreat of the Italians which has apparently been attended by some losses.

Rome, June 10.—With regard to the withdrawal of the Italian garrisons to Valona, in consequence of the occupation by Albanian insurgents of the villages of Bestrova and Selitza, an authoritative statement issued last night declares that the incidents which have occurred are merely minor encounters between Italian troops and irregulars. It is admitted, however, that the Albanians are hostile towards Italy, owing to the agitation carried on by Servians and Greeks, with regard to which Italy has made representations at Athens and Belgrade. The statement adds that Italy is determined to remain at Valona, with a possible restriction of the zone of occupation.

Siccawei Weather Reports

13.—A vast depression develops in China, to the South of the Yangtze: there are two centers, the one on the border of Tongking, the other near the Hangchow Bay, with distinct circulations of the air around the centers. Day mostly overcast and oppressive, with occasional thunder and showers in China and at Formosa.

14.—The backing of the wind to NE makes the air less damp and the heat more tolerable. The pressure remains low. Weather still overcast.

Chemical Discovery Amazes Scientists

At a meeting in St. Louis of the American Chemical Society Miss Irene Diner, the only woman member of the section, announced that she had discovered how to tell how many miles auto tires will go. Miss Diner is twenty-five years old and a graduate student in New York University. She refused a $10,000 cash offer for her discovery and gave it outright to science. She is a daughter of the professor of chemistry in Fordham University and is a graduate of Columbia University.

WHEN FEVERISH OR IN PAIN

There Is Prompt Help And Comfort For Little Ones In Baby's Own Tablets

The health of babies and young children is subject to rapid changes, and careful mothers should not delay at the first sign of feverishness with chills or flushes. There is warning in a hot dry skin, thirst, quick breathing and a plaintive cry; at such a time a prompt dose of Baby's Own Tablets, the children's friend, will often avert a serious illness.

Mrs. M. D. Matheson, of 42 Dufresne Street, Montreal, says:—"My little boy, 5 years old, was threatened with fever. I gave him Baby's Own Tablets at night and in the morning he was better. I shall always use Baby's Own Tablets for my little ones, and I find they take them without trouble."

Baby's Own Tablets, the Canadian children's remedy are guaranteed to be equally helpful and harmless to the youngest infant as to the child of 6 years or more. They are recommended for simple fever, colds, indigestion, constipation, colic, diarrhoea, disturbed sleep, eczema, teething troubles and worms. Obtainable from druggists, also post free at 60 cents the vial, from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., 96 Szechuen Road, Shanghai.

Death Threat Turns Child's Hair White

Spot On Girl's Head Covered By Bolshevist's Gun Changes Color

New York, April 30.—A patch of white just above the forehead in the otherwise jet black hair of twelve-year-old Sherva Bardenstein, who arrived yesterday aboard the Lloyd Sabaudo liner Regina d'Italia, was due, according to her sixteen-year-old sister Frema, to the impression of the muzzle of a revolver held against her head by one of a band of Bolsheviki last summer in the home of her mother in Odessa.

Frema speaks English fairly well and said that Sherva was alone in the house when the marauders entered. They searched in vain for money and then one put the revolver against the head of the little girl and told her he knew there was money in the house and that she must tell where it was hidden or she would be killed. There was no money and Sherva, who was expecting death from the pistol, said so. The men finally gave up torturing her and left the house. When her mother, Frema and another sister arrived home and heard the child's story they noted that the hair where the muzzle of the revolver had pressed was snow white.

The family was met here by the father William Bardenstein, prosperous merchant of The Bronx, who took them to his home there.

DR. DEWEY MAKES HANGCHOW VISIT

(China Press Correspondence)

Hangchow, June 11.—Prof. John Dewey, accompanied by his wife and two daughters, reached Hangchow last night. They had visited here just a year ago, when they spent a week lecturing and conferring with the educators of the city.

A full program of lectures has been arranged for the next three or four days, including a mass meeting in the West Lake Theater, to which the public will be invited.

Tomorrow morning Dr. Dewey will meet in conference with educational leaders in the Provincial Educational Society Hall.

LOTTERY SURVEY

A survey has just been made of the lottery business in Hangchow by a committee of representative Christians. The survey shows that ten different lotteries are in operation in the city; that tickets are sold in lottery shops; in other shops selling tickets as a side line; on stands in street corners and from door to door by peddlers.

It has also been learned that more than a million dollars' worth of business is being done by lottery companies annually.

A petition of protest is being prepared by the Union Evangelistic Committee of the churches which will be forwarded to the Provincial Assembly, to the Military and Civil Governors and to the Peking Government.

ASSEMBLY OPPOSED

The Provincial Assembly has already expressed disapproval of the business, but its connections with government agencies make attack difficult.

Children Cry for Fletcher's

CASTORIA

Fletcher's Castoria is particularly a preparation for Infants and Children made agreeable to the taste, acceptable to the stomach and pleasant in its action. It has been in use for over thirty years and has always been one of the most highly esteemed of all cathartic preparations. It has one great advantage over other preparations of its kind in that while it opens the organs readily and completely, it does not have a tendency to produce subsequent constipation so much to be dreaded.

It was only after years of research in the fields of herbs and roots for a combination of purely vegetable matter that would have all the virtues of Castor Oil, without its disagreeable, nauseating properties, especially when used for infants or children, that the formula used in Fletcher's Castoria was found, and which for over 30 years has proven its worth. Try it.

Save the Babies.

Infantry mortality is something frightful. We can hardly realise that of all the children born in civilised countries, twenty-two per cent., or nearly one quarter die before they reach one year, thirty-seven per cent., or more than one-third, before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen! We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save many of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity, they stupefy, retard circulation and lead to congestion, sickness, death. To avoid any possibility of giving your child opiates, or narcotics of any kind, keep Fletcher's Castoria in the house, and Save the Babies.

Romance Ends the Ancient Feud of Bourbons and Bonapartes

In the American Hospital in Paris Young Prince George de Bourbon Meets the Princess Nina Murat, Doing Service as a War Nurse--- and the Descendant of the Old French Kings Loses His Heart to the Great-Granddaughter of Napoleon's French General

When the Paris Mob Sacked the Tuileries Palace of King Louis XVI. and Queen Marie Antoinette—This Marked the Downfall of the Bourbons.

—And—

The Princess Nina de Murat in Her Nurse's Costume, as a War Worker at the American Hospital near Paris.

The Prince George de Bourbon in His Italian Army Uniform.

The Picturesque American Hospital of Paris, Where the Romance Began.

ONE of the prettiest romances of the great war has ended a century old feud and united the famous royal house of Bourbon and the equally famous Bonapartist family of Murat.

Prince George de Bourbon, a prominent young member of the great French royal house, has become engaged to Princess Nina Murat, a very charming member of the Bonapartist princely family. They met while engaged in hospital work after the war and found that they could not help loving one another in spite of the age-long enmity of their families.

Everyone knows that Napoleon Bonaparte rose to power on the ruins of the royal house of Bourbon in the French Revolution. Joachim Murat, Prince of the Empire and brother-in-law of Napoleon, was his greatest cavalry leader.

Ever since that period there has been hatred, more or less bitter, between the house of Bourbon and the distinguished families of the Napoleonic era. This feeling was especially strong in the case of the Murat family, because Joachim Murat took the crown of Naples from a branch of the Bourbons.

Never before this has a Bourbon intermarried with any of the famous Napoleonic families.

Shortly after the outbreak of hostilities Prince George de Bourbon, finding that as a member of the former royal house of France he was prescribed by law from joining the French army, became an aviation officer in the Italian army. For a time good luck was with him, and he distinguished himself by downing a number of Austrian planes, but one day, engine trouble forced him to descend within the enemy's lines and he was taken prisoner. Chance was kind to him, for the two Austrian officers who effected his capture turned out to be his cousins, sons of the Austrian Archduke Joseph. It was through the efforts of these relatives that he did not have to suffer the discomforts that were usual with prisoners.

Upon his release, after the armistice, Prince George came to Paris and entered into the service of the American Red Cross to assist in after-war reconstruction.

Fate had been preparing the stage setting for this romance for some time. About the time when Prince George commenced his flying career, the Princess Nina Murat, impelled by an irresistibly great desire to do some practical work for the men fighting, sailed from Cyprus, where her family had been living, to join some one of the woman's relief organizations working behind the lines. She was readily accepted on her arrival at Marseilles, and was assigned to a large military ambulance as an "auxiliary," where she labored throughout the entire war, caring for the wounded, until the armistice gave her demobilization.

She thought of returning to Cyprus, but the war had changed her view-point of life, and she realized that a life without motive or purpose would never again satisfy her. She resisted the appeals of her family to return home. She decided to continue to enjoy her emancipation from her former life of idling and do some good in the world by becoming a real, trained professional nurse.

By chance she learned that there was a vacancy in the student nursing staff of the American Hospital in Paris. She thought that in this splendid institution maintained by Americans for Americans, one of the best equipped and best organized hospitals in Europe, she would be able to get the necessary training to do what she planned. She went to see Doctor Edmund Gros, prominent in the direction of the hospital, who was at first sceptical that a young woman of such title and high position could be serious in taking up professional nursing. But she soon convinced him, and not long after she was seen in her white cap and blue and white gingham dress, known as "Miss" or "Mademoiselle Murat," the new student nurse. She surprised everyone by the earnest enthusiasm with which she went about her rather onerous duties.

One day a new patient was received in her ward, suffering from a severe attack of tonsillitis. She was assigned to attend to him. She tucked him in his bed and placed the thermometer in his mouth in a thoroughly business-like, professional way. When her preliminary attentions had finished, she started to arrange the pillows for his head, when the fevered lips of the young man whispered:

"What is your name, please, Mademoiselle?"

"Murat," she responded, "Mlle. Murat."

The patient's eyes almost popped out of his head. He gazed at her as if she had given him the shock of his life, which was all beyond the comprehension of the nurse.

Finally he recovered self-possession enough to groan:

"Murat, Mon Dieu, Murat! Do you know what my name is? Well, it's Bourbon—George de Bourbon." And he added, laughingly: "But say, you're too nice to visit a family grudge on a sick man, aren't you?"

The princess avowed that she would do nothing worse than maintain armed neutrality, pointing out that it was a generous concession on her part, as she had him in her power! She did not need to tell this to Prince George. He knew it in more ways than one from the moment he looked well at her sympathetic face. And as the days sped on and he was becoming better under her careful attention he realized that her power over him was growing. His traditional hereditary enemy was becoming more to him than his life-long friend. And the little nurse, herself, began to show great inquietude for fear that he would be released from the hospital prematurely and suffer a relapse.

During his convalescence "Miss" Murat was assigned to take "Mr." Bourbon out for his constitutional promenades in the hospital garden, which is charmingly wooded and provided amply with cosy nooks and rustic seats. They found many things to talk about, and with their intimate knowledge of several languages, it was not difficult to camouflage whatever tenderness they desired to express to each other, without having those about them know what they were talking about. French history was entirely forgotten and ignored in their companionship—especially that which pertained to the Bourbons, Bonapartes, Murats and other possible historic bugbears to their new-found happiness.

When the prince became so well that there was no possible excuse to allow him to remain another day at the hospital, an affectionate parting occurred which came as a surprise to the attaches of the institution, who had, perhaps, been too busy to notice the romance that was developing under their very eyes.

As the gossip spread throughout the various wards of the hospital, one of the medical staff remarked: "Well, that ought to prove that we can cure anything at the American Hospital—even royal blood feuds."

And now they are to be married. Perhaps even more remarkable than the love affair of these young people is the fact that their families have forgotten their ancient feud and consented to their marriage. It is a sign of a new state of feeling after the war.

Some Frenchmen even believe that the union has great political significance, that it forecasts a union of the Royalist and Bonapartist parties who will agree upon a common candidate for king or emperor of France. To all serious-minded persons who appreciate the immense strength the French republic has shown during the last fifty years and during the great war, this view appears ridiculous in the extreme, but still it adds interest to the romance.

The Murats are regarded as of more importance than any of the other Napoleonic families, for they have the blood of the great Emperor in their veins. Joachim Murat, the innkeeper's son, married Caroline Bonaparte, sister of the Emperor, and from this union the present members of the Murat family are descended.

Murat was entitled "Imperial Highness" by Napoleon, an honor otherwise only given to those bearing the name of Bonaparte. Then he was created King of Naples by the Emperor, the highest reward given to any of the Napoleonic marshals. Murat helped Napoleon to win his great victories of Marengo, Austerlitz, Jena and Friedland.

He is considered by Frenchmen the greatest cavalry commander of all history. He was accustomed to charge upon the enemy carrying only a riding whip and thus inspiring his men with such courage that they swept headlong to victory.

In taking the throne of Naples Murat dispossessed the branch of the Bourbon family, which had reigned over Naples and Sicily. By this act he added to the many causes of hatred that the Bourbons felt for Napoleon and his marshals.

When Napoleon's fortunes were failing, Murat was driven out of his Italian Kingdom. Upon the Emperor's return from Elba, his marshal made a desperate attempt to regain possession of Naples, but he had a mere handful of men and was killed in the attempt.

It is common history that Napoleon and his marshals, most of them self-made, plebeian men, rose to power on the fall of the old Bourbon monarchy in the French Revolution. Bourbon princes and royalists regarded Napoleon as no better than the leaders of the mob that invaded the Tuileries palace, insulted King Louis XVI. and Queen Marie Antoinette and finally sent them to death by the guillotine.

There is a tradition that Napoleon, as a penniless lieutenant of artillery, looked on from his lodging house window at the invasion of the Tuileries by the mob. Despising the weakness of the King who failed to stop this outrageous intrusion into his palace, the young soldier wrote in his diary:

"One day I will occupy that palace in place of the fool who sits there to-day."

Throughout the Empire the Bourbons persistently intrigued against Napoleon. The Emperor added greatly to the bitterness existing between the two dynasties by seizing the most popular member of the Bourbon family, the Duc d'Enghien, on neutral territory, and causing his execution without a trial before dawn in the moat of Vincennes.

Then fortune turned the tables once more. Upon the restoration of the Bourbons to the throne in 1815, Napoleon went into exile and many of his great lieutenants faced death or ruin.

Yet again was the Napoleonic faction to regain ascendency. In 1852 Napoleon III., nephew of the great Emperor, regained the imperial throne. He immediately invited to his court all the surviving members of the great Napoleonic families, such as the Murats, the Neys, the Berthiers and the Lannes, in order to give the right historic atmosphere to his reign.

At the same time he exiled the Bourbon princes from France and deprived them of their property.

In 1870 the Napoleonic dynasty fell again, and since then the Republic has treated both Napoleonic and Bourbon princes with impartial severity.

There is a peculiar chapter of family history behind the little Princess Nina Murat, the heroine of the present romance. When the great Murat of Napoleon's day perished he left his family homeless and in danger of persecution. His two sons, with little left to them but a famous name, were obliged to seek their own fortunes. One remained in France, and the proof that he surmounted the difficulties of his position is shown by the fact it was his luxurious home near the Place des Etats-Unis which his grandson was able to place at the disposition of President Wilson when he came to Paris to make the peace which Americans have not yet enjoyed.

The other brother decided to seek his fortune in the East and set forth from Marseilles for Constantinople in a sailing vessel which was wrecked on the rocky coast of the island of Cyprus. The prince wished to resume his voyage, but his wife refused to take any further chances on the sea and, as is often the case even in royal families, the weaker sex showed itself the stronger and won the argument. They remained in Cyprus, and it was there that their granddaughter, the Princess Nina, was born.

The branch of the Bourbon family to which Prince George belongs has been domiciled in Italy, where the young prince of the love-story came into the world.

Catalogued for sale 1,581,795 lbs. (about 706 tons).

Sold 1,093,887 lbs. (about 488 tons).

The local auctions did not commence until Thursday this week on account of Monday being a holiday.

Interest was much keener than it has been for some weeks at the auction, and it was comparatively easy to find buyers of most grades. There has been a general increase in prices chiefly on account of better news having been received from consuming markets.

Standard Ribbed Smoked Sheet opened at about 76½ cents and rose to 77½ cents but later 79 was established. This shows an increase of 5 cents on the week.

Standard 1st Latex Crepe was in excellent demand, only a limited quantity again being on offer. 80½ cents was reached on the first day, showing an increase of 7 cents on the week.

Fine Brown and Lower Grades of Crepe were easy of sale, and the increases on the week for these grades are from 3-5 cents.

At the continuation this morning, the market continued firm although rather quieter and there was an easier feeling, resulting in a general drop in prices of about a half cent.

Harding For President

THE nomination of United States Senator Warren G. Harding for the Presidency on the Republican ticket will not come as a surprise to students of American political conditions. As a matter of fact the choice of Senator Harding is a logical one. He was the favorite of the Republican machine which saw in him a real chance to reunite the Republican party. He is a solid, substantial, self-made man with an ancestry deeply rooted in American soil and American tradition. He has many qualities that appear to the general run of voters and in all probability will make a better campaign and draw a larger vote than would have been possible to any one of the more prominent men whom he defeated in the race for the nomination.

Senator Harding is of Scottish and Dutch stock, is a combination that is almost unbeatable. The characteristics of this stock shine out through his whole career. The son of a poor country doctor he worked his way through school and college. He labored as a grader in a railroad camp, painted barns, played a horn in the village band, set type and wrote editorials for his college paper, and after leaving college became the owner of a struggling daily newspaper at Marion, Ohio.

Marion then boasted a population of 4,000. The paper was turned over to him on his promise to pay its debts. He not only paid it out as he promised but he made it the biggest newspaper in that section of Ohio. Marion is now a city of 30,000 and Harding is either director or shareholder in every important enterprise there. His newspaper, the Marion Daily Star, remains the pride of his life. As soon as he got it on a paying basis he reorganised it as a stock company and distributed a large portion of the stock among his employes who still own it. It is said of him that there is no department of the paper, from typesetting to editorial writing that he has failed to master and there were times in the early days when he worked in every department every day. His whole career has been one of unremitting toil.

Politically he has always been active. He has served as a member of the Ohio senate, and as Lieutenant Governor and in 1914 he was elected to the United States Senate, defeating his democratic opponent by over 100,000 votes. He is a member of the Foreign Relations Committee and of many other important Senate committees. He is a conservative and sagacious business man, a forceful and convincing public speaker and as a statesman has been classified by The Literary Digest as of the McKinley type. This may be interpreted as meaning that if elected President he will not try to dominate his party and the National Legislature, as for example President Wilson is accused of attempting to do, but will take council with and be guided by the party leaders. His strongest appeal probably will lie in this direction. Wilson's cabinets have been weak. The country will feel assured in voting for Harding that he will surround himself with the very ablest men in his party.

Likely as not he would name Senator Knox for Secretary of State and General Leonard Wood for Secretary of War. In the present state of the country a powerful cabinet will be regarded as a national safeguard. Harding is a compromise candidate running on a compromise platform and, in the best sense of the term, he is a inclined by nature and experience toward the compromise as the sane way of solving the problems that confront present day statesmen.

And President Wilson has been so set against any and all forms of compromise that the country may very easily wish to turn to the other kind of statesman for a change. Harding is able, he is honest and he is big, and in nominating him the Republicans have set the democrats a problem which they will find very difficult to solve.

Calle de la Muerte y la Vida

(The Street of Life and Death, in Segovia, Spain)

A tint of old rose in the plaster
Of walls where the balconies cling,
A street that goes lurching with cobbles,
Where cries of the pedlars will ring:
An ancient with glittering baskets,
A maiden with bags at her band—
"Vaso!" the vender of bottles,
"Arena!" the seller of sand:

The maid of the mountains comes riding
With purple cloth over her head;
Around the grey neck of her donkey
Her feet, scarlet sandalled, are spread;
The curtains of muslin at casements
Will sway with the wind at the doors,
Senoras will hear a voice crying
The sand for the cleaning of floors.

"Arena!" she sings with her burden,
And "Vaso!" says he with his glass;
His voice is a clinking of bottles,
And hers is a chant like a mass.

He follows the road of the sunbeam—
Who wouldn't with bottles to sell?
But which open door is the last one
Is more than a pedlar can tell.
The bottleman's footsteps are stumbling
In rags and the dust on his feet—
Oh, think of the name of the highway,
And haste to another street!

"Vaso!" he begs, and behind him
The seller of sand lifts her head;
"Arena!" she calls from her donkey
Her sandalled feet flashing so red,
She passes, audacious with singing,
The street of the living and dead.

CHARLES DIVINE.

His Not To Reason Why

A dear old gentleman noticed a laborer walking along a railway train and diligently tapping the wheels. Having nothing better to do, the old gentleman approached and asked:

"How many years have you been working for this railway, my man?

"Thirty-eight, sir," replied the laborer, still continuing his work.

"I suppose you have had many varied experiences in your time—plenty of change of occupation, I expect?"

"No, Sir, I've always 'ad this same job, I've tapped the wheels of trains for eight-and-thirty years, sir."

"A long time, my man, a very long time; and if I may say so it shows a steady character. And by the way—what is the reason for tapping the wheels? Why do you do it?"

The man stood up, scratched his head, and said, "I'm darned if I know."—Tit-Bits.

Kaiser Personally Ordered Submarine War

BY CYRIL BROWN
(In The New York World)

How the German Navy boasted that it could bring Great Britain to her knees by five months of ruthless submarine warfare—in a portion of the memorandum which Grand Admiral von Holtzendorff submitted to the Kaiser and military and civil chiefs of Germany in December, 1917. The second part of this memorandum, shows the German high command coldly calculated that the United States would enter the war and blundered wildly on what would be the result.

This document has hitherto been closely guarded by German militarism because of its proof of the fatuous judgment of the high command at Germany's critical hour. Only five copies of it were printed, and the one obtained by The World comes from the secret files of the Foreign Office.

Aside from the false judgment on the capabilities of America and Britain, the memorandum shows that the German high command expected Japan would play some role which would hamper America in the war. Outwardly, the only indication of conflict between America and Japan lay in the opposition the Washington Government was displaying toward the aggressive policy in China. It was only after the entrance of America into the war that the differences were composed in the Hay-Ishii agreement, which Japan hailed as American recognition of her "Monroe Doctrine of the East," but which America has since refused to accept as such a broad concession.

Another strong feature of the memorandum is the emphatic insistence on frightfulness and on giving no notice of its application. The concluding portion of the document follows:

The Chief of the Admiralty.
To B 35840 I
Berlin, Dec. 27, 1916.
STRICTLY SECRET

In England one knows that Great Britain's power and greatness and thereby her economic world position cannot be maintained without the dominating importance of her mercantile fleet, and one feels that this dominion is already tottering. Great Britain cannot allow the losses to her fleet to increase in such large numbers from month to month.

The man on the Continent can scarcely imagine what a vital question this means for the island inhabitant. If he sees that imports and exports are cut off to a dangerous extent, his power of resistance will be tested in a manner he has hitherto not experienced and to which, according to human judgment, he is unequal. The consequence would be general panic, with its effects upon trade, prices and the public at large.

I estimate this psychological effect upon the Britisher no less than the immediate effect upon the imports. In this war Great Britain has repeatedly had the experience of an apparently threatening submarine war; but from the beginning, on the German side, it was subjected to restrictions which rendered a decisive effect doubtful, and foreign protest, sooner or later, has brought the undertaking to a standstill. The doubt as to whether matters were earnest this time would cripple any effect upon the British feeling.

GIVE NO WARNING

This can only be prevented if the announcement of unrestricted submarine warfare against enemy ships is immediately followed by its execution, and further if the unrestricted warfare with regard to neutral shipping in the war zone follows the announcement at the shortest notice, so that then only those ships will be spared which, after having left their port of departure, could in no way be informed of the coming into force of the submarine warfare and when no kind of preliminary negotiations give room for hope that also this time the last step will not be taken.

If this is done, then, but only then, will terror seize hold of shipping, the British people and the neutrals, which guarantees the success of the unrestricted submarine warfare. I expect this success for certainty within a period of, at the most, five months. The success will suffice to make Great Britain inclined toward a serviceable peace.

I have to concern myself with the effects which the breaking off of diplomatic negotiations and the declaration of war by the United States would have. It is a question of learning whether and to what extent they would be able to carry the success of the submarine weapon.

At first, the help which the United States would be able to render the Entente would probably be in the form of troops, in which case it must not be regarded as impossible to gather large numbers of volunteers in the United States. It is another matter, however, with regard to the training and employment of them under demands such as those of present-day war conditions. In the United States the conditions for such training do not exist. The history of the Spanish War in 1898 is instructive as to the capacity and incapacity of the American Army.

U.S. COULD NOT SEND TROOPS

But the decisive question is that of transport. Certainly one has lightly spoken of "hundreds of thousands" of American volunteers who would have to be taken into account. Against this it must be considered that, reckoning low, 400,000 gross registered tons of shipping space would be required to convey 100,000 soldiers, without horses, conveyances, or any equipment other than their personal baggage, in the course of a month from the United States to France. If one takes into account the time which it would cost in each instance to fit 100,000 men even scantily for war service, one soon sees that any great reinforcement of the enemy armies from America must founder already on the question of transport.

As little tenable are the fears that still far greater quantities of munitions would be placed at the disposal of the Entente from the United States than hitherto. According to all reliable reports, the organisation of the American iron industry, which otherwise would have been somewhat paralysed by the World War, but as it is has been stimulated both politically and through extraordinary employment and gains, has already increased the manufacture of munitions for the Entente to the utmost by utilising all available factories for this aim. In the United States iron and steel prices have already attained such a height that the local requirements are left unsatisfied.

On the other hand, the unrestricted submarine war would place the submarine in the welcome position of at last being able to sink the consignments of munitions which come over in boats now unassailable, and thus obtain the relief for the army so urgently desirable. The appearance of a submarine on the American coast has taught the Americans what to expect before their own door should the occasion arise.

MUST GUARD AGAINST JAPAN

Finally, if the United States herself becomes drawn into the war entanglement, she loses the freedom of placing her means of war at disposal in Europe as unreservedly as formerly. The standpoint of their own safety then comes into the foreground. The United States can least of all lose sight of the Japanese danger if she becomes one of the war parties, especially after the change of Cabinet in Tokio and in view of the prospect of a quicker and keener action on the part of the Japanese in China. The United States also cannot lose sight of the influence which would be exercised upon the activistic tendencies in Japan if she gets rid of her means of warfare to too great a measure. It seems as if the United States already exercise somwhat more reserve in the shipment of munitions.

Considerable value is frequently attributed to support from the United States in another field—namely, that of finance. It is corrected that America would be in the position to come to the rescue of the Entente with still much greater loans than hitherto, if the United States itself and the martial feelings of the whole Nation were to be mobilised.

Whatever considerations we may have about these matters, however, the chief thing is the incomparableness between a financial support of Great Britain by the United States and the effects of the submarine war. Loans, securities, payments and everything belonging to the category are of no avail when a land is cut off from supplies. The scarcity to which it then succumbs cannot be overcome with gold and gold values. This settles the consideration of the American danger from this aspect.

STRANGLE HOLD

It seems to be more serious in the direct effect ascribed to it; namely, in the reaction upon the European states which have remained neutral—i. e., practically Holland and Denmark. Also apart from American influence one must bear in mind the possibility that in case of the unrestricted submarine war Great Britain will exercise a pressure upon these countries by stopping all overseas supplies, which would compel them to a complete blocking of their frontiers or even to war with Germany.

As was done during the September negotiations in the general headquarters, so also here I can confine myself to Holland and Denmark, because these are the countries from which we have received considerable running supplies in the past, and which, on the other hand, as land neighbors, are able to mean a direct war menace.

The results of the German harvest for this autumn, and particularly the potato crop, are not such that one should not consider foreign imports. Conditions have certainly been relieved through the occupation of Wallachia (in Rumania). Also already since last summer a great decline of imports from Holland and Denmark is noticeable. The British pressure has already greatly increased. The Ministry of Lloyd George indicates radical progress in this direction.

The extension of the right of prohibition to wares of all kinds and to all goods intended for or coming from Germany regardless of their route, even via neutral territory; the way in which the right of examination is exercised with regard to neutral ships which are forced into British ports and there have to submit to every wish; the refusal of bunker coal, which, according to recent official communication, affects all neutral ships as far as they are not running for the Entente; the rationing of all neutral countries according to their own requirements before the war, supported by a close system of commercial spying and the "blacklists"—all this has already brought the neutrals so far that they even placed their penal legislation in the service of the blocking of goods traffic with Germany, and that Denmark, for instance, put up with the stopping of her traffic with Iceland.

'THOROUGHLY DOCILE'

Briefly, the neutrals, perhaps apart from Sweden, have been thoroughly docile. In any case, even without submarine warfare, we must be prepared for the entrance of a complete blockade on the part of Denmark and Holland.

Germany's defense against the hostile majority is a mighty achievement. The universal public opinion, however, judges more roughly, according to the positive success which, in the first place, they themselves have experienced. It means grave danger not only the present but also for the future if white there is still time Germany does not change her course and teach the neutrals that she is not inferior to Great Britain in the matter of persevering of will and strength. For this purpose, the unrestricted submarine war is the given and only means; it will turn the tables and carry the economic war into the enemy country. It will quicken and change the opinion of the neutrals as to where lies the superior force of will and action.

This is also the guiding standpoint in deciding the question as to whether it need be feared that the pressure from Great Britain and America might drive Denmark and Holland into the camp of our enemies. From a military standpoint, both of those countries are unequal to the powers engaged in this war. They have little or nothing to gain from participating in the war, but have everything to lose.

The example of Rumania (just conquered and devastated by the Germans) frightens them. Copenhagen and the traffic between the Danish islands and the mainland lie within gun range of our ships, and the fleet makes any action by Denmark an absolute impossibility. In the same way Holland exposes her land to ruin if the protection of her territory requires flooding the country.

Both countries would be placed in a situation not comfortable, but they would have to accommodate themselves until the stormy weather is over. Appropriate measures for relieving them of the surplus foodstuffs, which hitherto have gone to Great Britain at good prices, would help them. The chief thing is that the necessity of having to limit themselves owing to the unrestricted submarine warfare, which would enable one to anticipate the end of the war before long, would not cause a resolution of war. How these countries thereby manage is their own matter.

MUST SURPRISE THE WORLD

In this connection I cannot omit again pointing out the necessity of beginning the unrestricted submarine war immediately after the announcement of it and without giving the enemy time to carry out counter moves. If the effect of the submarine war comes unexpectedly I have no doubt but that the neutrals will quietly await the consequences of the contest between the great powers, the terrible earnestness of which they can clearly see.

It is possible that the surprising event would occur of even the United States hesitating to enter the war, about the dangerousness of which they have no doubts. On the other hand, they would almost be compelled to interfere if there was time between the announcement and the beginning of the submarine war to challenge the taking up of a reasonable attitude.

This train of thought leads further to the last fundamental view which our war policy will now have to adopt.

The war is pressing on toward a finish. For Germany it has already lasted too long. The terrible loss of human life alone justifies our anxiety for the future development. Those who have fallen were the best year classes and the most alive forces of the nation, and they will mean a heavy loss to get over when it comes to solving the immense problems of reconstruction and the development of the economic position in peace time.

The economic resources of the country are constantly being more undermined. People, raw material, machines are all lacking, innumerable works have to be established afresh and the apparent prosperity of wide industrial circles must not be allowed to deceive one as to the general position. The financial burden has increased to an extent which justifies the question as to whether the sums necessary for the interest on it and its gradual repayment will leave room for the possibility of a fresh economic development.

GERMAN PEOPLE WEARY

The greater part of the population has become weary. It is uncertain whether one can still hope for a moral elevation of the people, as was expected a year ago, by those returning home from the front, especially when they become distributed among those who have remained at home. The change in the attitude of the Social Democratic Party is not apt to support an optimistic view.

It would be wrong to underestimate the deep-slumbering dangers of such a state. An improvement, however, can be expected if the war policy takes a vigorous turn toward the end; it would mean a weighty stimulus for the whole nation.

If one looks abroad one sees that the enemy lost no time in cutting off our relations with the rest of the world. In the enemy countries every fruit and root of German labor has been absolutely exterminated. Our overseas relations with neutral countries are wasting away under the long interruption and it will be difficult to restore them. The United States and Japan have taken places which otherwise Germans would have had. Without a flourishing export trade and shipping traffic, however, Germany cannot exist.

An end will have to be made. From where else shall it come? One can hardly expect victories on land, in the sense of a political decision against our chief enemies. There is no sufficient basis for a calculation that our enemies will collapse within a short space of time.

'SUCCESS OF THE STRONGER'

I have no fears that the unrestricted submarine war in itself would irreparably influence our relations with the other states, not even with the United States. Least of all can we remove hatred and embitterment caused by the war by compliance and considerateness. But what is lacking in friendly feeling can be counterbalanced by respect. It has always been the success of the stronger before which the world has bowed.

If Great Britain considers her vital condition to be in the maintenance of her predominance at sea, we shall be unable to avoid shattering this claim. This is for us the very first aim of the war. We do not fight against Great Britain remaining the first naval power if she wishes to raise the means for it, but Germany must not come out of the war with the acknowledgment that Great Britain possesses the predominance at sea.

Great Britain has hitherto been able to preserve throughout the world the belief in her absolute naval predominance. The reconstruction of our world position would be frustrated by this belief unless we break it in the war. In life it is not things as they are which decide, but the images people make of them. Whether Great Britain's naval predominance remains or not depends upon what the rest of the world outside of Germany thinks on the matter on the last day of the world war.

The unrestricted submarine war is the given and sole means of leading the general idea back to the actual state of affairs. If the British predominance is once broken, the victory will have been gained. Between this and the ruin of Germany there is no choice.

We need victory in order to be able to arrange our position in the world politically and economically in a manner necessary for our life. Only just commercial treaties, which are not possible without victory over Great Britain, can protect us. We cannot dispense with the wealth that flows from a flourishing foreign trade, which has enabled us to cope with the economic and financial demands of this war, and without which in the future, both in times of peace and war, we should be powerless and exposed to each new attack of a malicious opponent without means of defense.

As the war can only be ended through a means with which we must accept the prospect of a rupture with the United States, and as on the other hand, in the interests of our self-preservation, the war has to be brought to an end by all means, it will be proper for us also to quietly weigh the consequences of an American declaration of war. For us there is but the choice between two evils. We must, therefore, choose the evil with which, even if unwillingly, we can get on instead of certain ruin.

AMERICA SEEN AS HELPLESS

Through her entrance into the war the United States at one stroke would give up the conditions of her economic prosperity, which has created for her the overwhelming political position she now occupies. She would then also be faced with the Japanese danger; she could neither hurt us decisively nor give decisive help to our enemies.

Further, the submarine war threatens her own maritime traffic, a danger no longer foreign to the Americans since the raid of the U-53. If Great Britain is once overpowered, an understanding would be possible with the United States, which alone would render possible the return of her economic prosperity and which need not impose any political sacrifice upon her.

The deciding factor always remains: We must face the American danger, because in the interests of our national existence we must gain the victory, and, moreover, soon. I can vouch for the submarine war for its part leading to victory.

Von HOLTZENDORFF.

Order Of Kaiser To Begin The Ruthless U-Boat War

The order of Kaiser Wilhelm which loosed U-boat frightfulness was given to Admiral von Holtzendorff, Chief of the Admiralty Staff, who sent it to Chancellor von Bethmann Hollweg in Berlin. It reads:

(STRICTLY SECRET.)
General Headquarters, Jan. 9, 1917.

I order the unrestricted submarine war to be started with full energy on Feb. 1. You must make all necessary preparations immediately in such a way that this purpose is not prematurely recognised by the enemy and the neutrals. The essential plans of operations are to be submitted to me.

A copy of this is to be handed to the Imperial Chancellor.

WILHELM I. R.

Admiral von Holtzendorff wanted the Chancellor to surrender his copy of the order. He put this note at the bottom of the copy he sent to Bethmann: "I beg Your Excellency to be good enough to send me the above copy." The request was not complied with.

How Air Is Compressed

Garrett P. Serviss Shows Why Small Tank Holds Large Amount Of Oxygen

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS

"How is it that a cylinder four feet high and ten inches in diameter can hold 4,000 gallons of oxygen, which dentists use, when they say air takes space?—H. S."

I wonder whether you know that the air you breathe, and which keeps you alive, is an unwilling prisoner, straining like a wild animal at his leash, and that it would vanish almost instantaneously and leave us gasping, if our good old mother earth should relax her grasp upon it, or have a gravitational faint. That fact, whether you know it or not, contains the answer to your question, and to many other more important questions. Air would indeed "take space," in another sense, if it were not forcibly restrained. To see how this is you must know the nature of a gas, such as oxygen, or atmospheric air. A gas is about the liveliest thing in existence. It consists of countless multitudes of invisibly small molecules, endowed with swift and incessant motion.

One would say that their sole thought and desire is to get away from one another and be individually free. But flying about in every direction, they get into one another's way, and interfere with each other's motions through collisions, and thus, even if no other restraint is put upon it, a mass of gas requires a certain time to become completely dissipated through surrounding space.

SUBJECT TO GRAVITATION

Besides, however, the particles of a gas are subject to the attraction of gravitation, and when they are in the presence of a very large, massive body like the earth they feel the restraint of its attraction and are drawn toward it and held around it, provided that its force of attraction is sufficient to so far overcome their free molecular motion that they can no longer get completely away, but must come back again and again like a stone thrown upward or like a pendulum bob returning. It is by virtue of this restraint exercised by gravity upon the molecules of the air that the earth is able to keep itself surrounded with a gaseous atmosphere. The density of that atmosphere and of every gas thus held to the earth depends upon the force with which gravity compresses the gaseous molecules, i. e., compels them to remain more or less close together instead of flying freely away. It depends to some degree also upon the temperature, because when a gas is heated the motion of its molecules is accelerated.

Now, when your dentist's oxygen was measured at 4,000 gallons, it had the degree of density imposed by the simple compressive force of the earth's gravity. But when, by mechanical force, it was driven into the metal cylinder, its density was increased in proportion as its volume was diminished, and the number of molecules contained in every cubic inch of space was also increased, so that the molecular motions were put under far greater restraint than they suffered when controlled by gravity alone.

HOW PRESSURE IS CAUSED

Owing to the increased number of molecules per volume, the number and frequency of collisions between them were likewise enormously increased, the result being a proportionally higher pressure from within on the walls of the cylinder.

For you must know that what we call the pressure of a gas is a kind of "kick," in the delivery of which all the gaseous molecules unite. They are so countless in number that the combined effect of their innumerable collisions with the walls of the vessel that shuts them in is equivalent to a steady push. It is called a "molecular bombardment."

Another way of looking at it is to say that a gas under compression resembles a coiled spring. The more its molecular motions are restrained, and the shorter the excursions that the flying molecules are able to make, the greater becomes their pressure and the more concentrated their united force of resistance. When the compression is suddenly relieved the confined force may spring into action with a terrific burst of energy.

In this age of the world, when the whole future progress of humanity depends upon the advancement and spread of scientific knowledge, everybody ought to know at least these simple facts about the nature of things around us. All matter appears to us in only three different shapes—solids, liquids and gases.

Common experience teaches everybody the principal facts about solids and liquids, but gases, whose molecules exhibit such an extreme form of inherent individualism that they would apparently avoid any kind of association if they were permitted to have their way, offer problems of their own.

Learn To Be A Master

Man Who Becomes Expert In Any Job Bound To Meet With Success

BY DR. WM. A. McKEEVER

(Professor In The University of Kansas And An Authority On Child Training).

Boys are constantly writing to me about their inability to get a start, to earn sufficient wages, to get upon the road of success without a pull, and the like. But this is all bosh.

If a boy simply has good health and his own time at his disposal, the way of success and splendid achievement rests wholly within himself and is not necessarily a concern or responisibility of others.

I want the boys who are whining and complaining about getting started in business to consider the case of a common, ignorant and uneducated negro who runs on the Pennsylvania Railway between St. Louis and Columbus. He is a marked success in the four-fold capacity sketched at the top of this column; and for some peculiar reason the company has given him the strange combination of duties.

He first checks up all the passengers on his car as any capable conductor would do. He then turns porter, and with a nimbleness that is almost a marvel this black fellow has all the berths ready in a jiffy. I have never seen a more efficient porter. At six-thirty in the morning, presto! our porter suddenly becomes an alert chef and serves a light breakfast to all in their berths.

And, strange to say, during the night, this four-sided black fellow "ignorant and uneducated" has shined twenty pairs of shoes as capably as would be done in any shining parlor.

Now, whine, young man. But this negro is a success at four jobs, at any one of which he should be able to make a good living—this fellow whom they all know by the name of George is in a position to put you to shame.

Cut out the growling. Hop to it and do something. Some plain, black porters are getting ahead. Some shoe shiners are making a fortune. Learn to do something well. There is virtue in expertness. Just as soon as you become a master of your job every one begins to respect you. You are the master in that line. You can shake your fist at failure. You can put on a bold countenance before the elect. You can slowly mold your own destiny.

First serve. Get down in the dirt if necessary. Become an expert in even a menial position while you keep an eye aloft for promotion. Get any job you can, but master it so completely that it looks little and puny to you. Then go on so to the next and the next.

DELICIOUS CANDIES

Libby's CREAM

Never would you think that candy could be made at home so easily as this! It's no trick at all to make dainty bonbons, chocolates, stuffed dates and all kinds of fascinating sweets.

You don't even need to light the stove.

The base for them all is made by sifting two cups of powdered sugar and adding enough Libby's Cream to form a paste that can be handled. Work this with the hands until creamy, and flavor with any preferred flavoring.

To make coconut candy, roll small portions of this cream fondant in shredded coconut and stand on oiled paper to dry. For bonbons, color with vegetable coloring or add chopped nuts, raisins, figs or coconut. Or you can use the fondant to stuff stoned dates or figs.

The secret of the success of all these tempting candies lies in Libby's Cream. For its consistency is just right to combine with the sugar. Ask your grocer today for a can of this creamy milk that comes to you from rich dairying district and see how easily you can be your own candy maker.

PROTEST BAN ON FRENCH IMPORTS

Paris Dealers In Luxuries Assert Restrictions Will Ruin Business

197 ARTICLES ARE BARRED

Edict will Close Market For American Automobiles And Typewriters

BY EDWIN L. JAMES

Paris, April 28.—Paris modistes and jewelers and other dealers in luxuries are panic-stricken over the publication of the list of articles the importation of which is prohibited by the French Government from today. The general French public, while approving the purpose of the restrictions, which is to better French exchange, fear the result will be to increase further the already exorbitant cost of living in France.

The list contains 197 articles. American business men will be interested in the prohibition of the importation of automobiles and typewriters, for which France has been a market. Among the important articles forbidden to be imported are:

Ready-made clothing; all sorts of feathers, mounted and unmounted; linen cloth; jute cloth; pure wool cloth; hair cloth, natural and artificial; stockings of real or artificial silk; laces; handkerchiefs; woolen and cotton hosiery; tulle of all sorts; embroideries; collars, cravats; corsets; furs; buttons and umbrellas.

Perfumery; fine brushes; hair and artificial hair and artificial teeth.

Jewelry and artificial jewelry; jewelry mountings; silverware; clocks and watches.

Furniture, other than bent wood; table linen; cutlery; polished table glass; stained glass windows; engravings; photographic apparatus; photographic paper and films; cinematograph films; eyeglasses and opera glasses.

Arms of all kind; automobiles; automobile chassis; airplanes; carriages of all sorts; fountain and ordinary-pens; wood pipes and lighters.

Hothouse plants; cut flowers and artificial flowers; musical instruments; flags; rubber goods and leather goods.

Stuffed chickens; goose liver; fresh or salted preserved game; oysters; lobsters; fresh fruit; nuts; figs and raisins; chocolate and bonbons; wines and liquors.

Tonight's newspapers are full of protests from French business men, who assert that many industries will be ruined and milions of profits lost which might have been made from American tourists. Many dealers hope the importation of raw materials will be permitted for the manufacture of luxuries to be exported. Tailors especially are worried, since they get practically all of their good quality cloth from England. The jewelers say they will suffer, since they buy their stones from the world market in London, and that if they cannot replenish their stocks, their business will suffer.

A big rush on straw hats is expected tomorrow, inasmuch as the French dealers import these articles from England and have by no means a sufficient stock to supply every Frenchman who likes this sort of headgear when the sun shines.
